

WHO (Europe) EUR/05/5058531(2006)
Highlights on health in the United Kingdom 2004

The increasing proportion of people over 65 is expected to continue into the foreseeable future.

According to WHO (2003f) estimates, a person born in the United Kingdom in 2002 can expect to live 78.2 years on average: 80.5 years if female and 75.8 if male.